Valedictorian and Salutatorian

By TRENT VALLEJO
Staff Writer

Congratulations to Amanda Shi, Valedictorian, and Constance Wang, Salutatorian. They both gave the inside tips to how anyone can fill their shoes.

The best way to become Valedictorian or Salutatorian is by studying at least once a week and for tests that are coming up. Taking AP courses throughout high school was also a key part of their academics.

Shi was part of DECA, National Honor Society, Muscular Dystrophy Association, volunteered and played soccer.

Wang was part of Key Club, Band, National Honor Society Chinese School, and Golf.

Shi comments that Sarah Yang, as well as her family, helped to get here. Wang commented as well that her parents have played a large role in her life this year.

The two are both attending University of Washington - Seattle, where Shi is planning to double major in Psychology and Biochemistry while Wang is majoring in Bioengineering/Biotechnology.

Good luck to these too, they have a bright future ahead of them, with their motives and goals they are going to succeed with ease in college.

A letter: Editor in Chief to Senior Class and favorite teacher

By COURTNEY WARTA
Editor in Chief

After at least 12 years of schooling, the time has come to walk across the stage at graduation. September began with excitement and the commonly used phrase, "I cannot wait to leave this place." Most of us thought we were ready to begin our new lives and venture out of our small, safe community. It was all too familiar and predictable for our growing ambitions. Ironically enough, as the year draws to a close many are now sad to leave the town that we have grown up in. Finding Camas cozy and comfortable, rather than small and limiting. New friendships, opportunities and lessons have presented themselves within the past year reminding us that we still have things to learn.

Although the ongoing traffic predicaments or scramble to find a lunch table will not be missed, so many other aspects outweigh the minute drawbacks. The community joins together to pack the stands at athletic events, showing up decked out in spirit wear. The band, dance team and cheerleaders present to support the team and showcase their talents.

Principal Marshall of Camas High School recalls good times and bright futures for graduates

By STEVE MARSHALL
Principal of Camas High School

Dear Graduates of the Class of 2016, "Congratulations!" "You did it!" "Follow your dream." "You are on your way..." You have likely heard multiple variations of these sentiments over the past few days. While there is truth and sincerity in each of these remarks, they tend to lose some of their meaning when they are continually repeated by friends, relatives, neighbors, and greeting card companies. This is unfortunate because I too want to congratulate every member of the Class of 2016, affirm your impressive achievements, and encourage you to keep taking steps toward your individual goals! So, while my farewell letter may lack originality, I want you to know that it is 100% sincere.

I want to compliment the Class of 2016 for its countless contributions to CHS. Since you walked through the doors in September 2012, CHS has added nearly 250 students and a couple of portables to its campus.

Walking for obesity: Seaside to San Diego

By AVERIE BERRY
Staff Writer

The 1,360 mile trip from Seaside to San Diego by car would take 19 hours and 24 minutes; by foot the trip would take an estimated 40 days at an average pace of 34 miles a day. Dale Rule, assistant football coach at Camas High School, plans on leaving from Seaside, Oregon June 23 and walking all the way to SeaWorld in San Diego by August 1. In order to do this trip in 40 days, Rule must walk 12 hours a day or an average of 68,000 steps each day.

"My goal is to impact and influence enough people," says Rule, "the world will change on its own." The goal of this walk is not only to raise obesity awareness, but to raise money toward the first of many 40 acre athletic walking facilities Rule has planned.

In December of 2009, Rule weighed 363 pounds and set a New Year's resolution to lose weight. On February 10, 2010 Rule went on his first walk and he has not stopped walking since. Losing over 100 pounds in just six months, Rule has held five 24 hour walks, two of which were held at Camas High School and three held at Doc Harris Stadium, where over 3,000 people have participated.

"I started walking to save my life," said Rule, and that is exactly what it did.

Recently, he was experiencing throat pains that only came during any physical activity. He decided to go to the doctor, mainly because he needs his body to be in good physical condition before his big walk. They found that the main artery connected to his heart was almost completely blocked, restricting the blood flow.

Doctors performed surgery, opening the artery nicknamed the 'widow maker.' This condition is most common in grown men and is often deadly if not caught early. Rule most likely would not have gone to the doctor, which saved his life.

Rule is feeling very excited about the walk and also very nervous. He knows it is physically challenging, but he is prepared to take on whatever obstacles he faces. His goal from this walk is to reach 20 percent of America in order to build the athletic walking facilities. His website, everyonewalk.com, has all the information on the athletic facilities, his big walk, ways to donate, and his book, Is the Prize Worth the Price?, which contains more about his story and how he overcame obesity through walking.

"Walking is something anyone can do", says Rule. He hopes that his walking can influence people across the world and show how anyone can do anything to better themselves.

The general route Dale Rule will be taking on his 40 day trip. He must keep a pace of 34 miles per day if he is to reach San Diego by August 1.

awards, accomplishments, and titles to our record books and trophy cabinets. I will review a fraction of your achievements in my Graduation speech, so for now I will just say this: Collectively and individually, you are a talented group! You have had a positive impact on CHS. Your spirit, your leadership, and your trailblazing achievements have set the bar very high for future classes.

Tonight's graduation ceremony signifies the end of your high school career. But it is also a celebration. It is a celebration of what you have done for - and what you mean to - our school. It is a celebration of high school memories. It is a celebration of your transition into adulthood and new opportunities.

Tomorrow is your first day as a CHS Graduate. You will then officially be, in the words of Dr. Suess, "on your way" toward new adventures, experiences, and destinations. Whatever you do, I hope you: 1. Do what interests you, not what you think you should do; 2. Do it with more energy and creativity than anyone else; and 3. Make a positive difference in our world...no matter how small. Whomever you meet, I advise you to treat them as a friend until proven otherwise. And wherever you go, don't forget to take with you the "Papermaker Pride" that makes this class, and this school, so special.

On behalf of the entire CHS staff, it is my honor to send you off with an enthusiastic "Congratulations!" and a final "Go Papermakers!"

A silent struggle: the story of Alex Harte

By RILEY KANKELBERG
Staff Writer

High school is often viewed as the best time of your life, but some teenagers have it tougher than others. Alex Harte was in his freshman year when he was diagnosed with cancer.

"I didn't actually see the last day [of my freshman year]," Harte said, "I'd had a cough for a long time, about two to three weeks. My doctor said it was bronchitis, so they gave me no antibiotics and no x-rays. Then they thought it was whooping cough."

"I don't really remember [my diagnosis]," Harte said. "I was in critical condition at the time, and maybe slightly in shock, so emotions are a total blur." It was no wonder he was shocked, for after an x-ray showed a cancerous fluid flooding his system, he had to be rushed to surgery to have the fluid pumped out.

The diagnosis was not the worst of Harte's ordeal though. When he reflected on some of the toughest obstacles he had to face, one of them involved an allergy to a drug that was supposed to help him recover. "I almost died from anaphylaxis. The alternative treatment was very painful and hard to endure," Harte said.

Throughout it all though, he learned not to take things for granted. "[I was changed] immeasurably for the better," Harte reflected. "I'm actually a lot more confident and sociable now, but also more modest and humble. Sometimes I can't decide if cancer is the worst or the best thing that ever happened to me."

One of his other struggles led to his greatest triumph. Since Harte had to stay bedridden for long periods of time, his muscles atrophied and he had to relearn basic movements most people take for granted. "Never in my life have I felt more liberated," he said about the moment he was able to walk again. "We take our ability to walk and be mobile for granted."

File Photo

Throughout his ordeal there were always people who had his back. "I don't want to say the obvious," he said with a smile, "but my family was my biggest support. I was in the MAGNET program, and when I got home from the hospital there was a basket from my class. I loved hats, so they sent me different hats and snacks that I couldn't really eat. There were people I didn't even know who were supporting me."

Having been through cancer, Harte had some advice for what comments really lifted his spirits during his ordeal. "If you ever need to talk, I'm here," was one. "You're one of the toughest guys I've ever met," was another, and "This too shall pass," was a favorite. Even a simple "I love you," from his mom was empowering.

After a long fight involving pills, shots, maliciously beneficial chemotherapy and many other treatments, Harte finally gets the rest he deserves.

"I've had no relapse, and if it ever were to happen it would have been in the early stage. The cancer's not coming back."

On a final note, Harte had a message for his biggest supporter. "Shoutout to my mom, the ASB bookkeeper and cashier," he said. "The next time you go to the window to pay for something, know that you're talking to one of the people who was always there during my darkest hours. I love you, too."

Congratulations to the cast and crew of Brigadoon.

They attended the Fifth Avenue Awards, in Seattle, on June 6. The show was nominated for Outstanding Overall Production, Music Direction, Orchestra, Lighting Design, Stage Crew, Performance by an Actress in a Leading Role and Performance by an Actress in a Featured Ensemble Role. To ALEXANDER SIMMS

I am really going to miss you! I used to say I wasn't going to but I will.

I look forward to more adventures, just the two of us hanging out and our Dutch and Starbucks trips. Can't forget about those! So many memories. Tons of fun times together like singing "Check Yes or No" by George Strait in the car with our country accents emphasizing, "Do you wanna be my friend?"

Also the time we were in Portland and the one guy thought we were a "cute couple" when we are actually siblings. I am definitely going to miss having you around every day!

Thank you for the rides to school. I'm sorry for the one day I was running behind and we left late. You're an amazing big brother, I love you.

I'm so excited for you!! I loved growing up with you, it was interesting and fun. You're a very funny person and always made me laugh even

A Life Fulfilled:
The moment in life where you hold the spotlight, Girl shine your bright light!

The dimness of the sorrow creeping toward you, knowing high school is over and through,

Those friends you made since day one, the relationship won't come undone,

Wait and see the results of education, your greatness will diffuse rapidly throughout the nation,

Display your true potential, for you are beyond words and are to me special,

Your personality lures people to you, shoot, everyone wishes to be you,

There are people whether intelligent, beautiful, or just quite hysterical, yet one is rare to display all three traits.

Jessica Sferle my dear stefanule sister, don't take life for granted for you don't get more than one chance.

You may look in the mirror and see one thing, but your reflection makes your loved ones hearts sing.

So it's finally time. I suppose it was inevitable, but I still can't truly wrap my head around the idea that the little munchkin, the one that I used to design cars for and walk to school with countless times in the past, the one that I shared just about everything with from houses to secrets, is growing up. Even after the years we spent growing together, you to this day remain the soccer-playing, carrot cake-eating, eloquent sentence-writing little Junie B. Jones of a sister. To me at least. I don't think I'll ever be able to fully believe it, but you're taking your first steps into adult life. And don't worry, if you're half as good of an adult as you are a high-schooler, you'll be better than just about anyone. Love you, little sister.

To my sister that I call "My Angel:"

We were both very young when we found out I had autism but none of that mattered to you. You accepted me for who I was, you loved me, protected me, and made me feel special.

Thank you for making me a priority, for spending time with me, and for having patience with me when it wasn't easy.

Your compassion, empathy, and understanding have helped me through life. Thank you for not only helping me, but also for helping other kids like me. Too often kids like me get overlooked, teased, and even bullied; having someone like you to offer a smile, a hug, a kind word, a friendship, makes us feel like we matter. You make us feel respected and loved.

Thank you for being my voice when I couldn't speak.

Thank you for being my best friend, my protector, my helper, and my sister.

Thank you for letting me watch Veggie Tales endlessly

Most of all thank you for your unconditional love.

I love you.

A word from the seniors

By AUSTIN COLEWELL

The one moment of this year that I will always remember is when I got my last lecture from Mr. Tomasetti. It was January 27, and the day previous I had been accepted into my college of choice, Western Washington University.

The first thing I wanted to do was tell my favorite history teacher at Camas High School, Mr. Tomasetti, that I was going to be attending his alma mater.

His classroom was quiet as I walked in from the red-walled doorway. Concentrating on his tablet with a copy of American Pageant on his desk, Tomasetti sat in his usual arm's reach of the whiteboard.

"Hello, Tomasetti," I greeted. Surprised for a moment, he peered at me through thick-lensed glasses.

"Colwell. How's your senior year going?" he inquired.

"It's been fantastic," I replied. "I came to tell you that I was accepted into Western Washington University!"

Grinning, he stated "Congratulations. Do you plan on attending?". Excitedly, I responded "Yes!" Then, he proceeded to give me a run-down of general WWU demographics based on dorms, course complexes and dining halls.

I truly appreciate my last lecture from Tomasetti, because it helped me chose what dorm I would pick and assist with my success in the future.

A word from the ASB President

Heartfelt words of remembrance from Aubrey Miles

By AUBREY MILES
ASB President 2015-2016

These past four years at Camas have been truly unforgettable; countless hours planning and setting up for school dances, living at Doc Harris as a bleacher creature on Friday nights, dedicating time and food to Stuff the Bus, procrastinating for AP classes, laughing with some of the best teachers around, hanging out in the North Commons and constantly getting parking tickets for forgetting my parking pass- I wouldn't trade a single second of it.

Being a Papermaker has truly been an honor and a privilege. I hope that when the class of 2016 leaves, the spirit, joy and heart at Camas only continues to grow and thrive. Being the ASB President this past year has been so fun and I feel so blessed to graduate with other amazing seniors.

Most memorable Camas High School Sports accomplishments

By SABINE POSTMA
Photography Editor

The 2015-16 school year was yet another successful year for Camas Athletics. The Papermakers' stellar effort shone throughout all three seasons: fall, winter and spring.

The Camas Athletics Teams started off the fall season with a bang. Football had an impressive League win and made it to the State Quarterfinals where they had a close loss against Skyline High School. Next up were the Camas Soccer Girls, who made it all the way to the State Semifinals with a tough loss in penalty kicks, taking third place. The Girls' Cross Country Team blew everyone away by taking first place in League, Districts, and State! Well done ladies. The Boys' Cross Country also had an impressive season placing first in League and Districts and then snatching up the sixth spot in State. Boys' Golf and Tennis also had good seasons placing third in Districts as a team. Girls Swimming came in second in League and claimed first place with an impressive District win. The Papermakers demonstrated their prowess yet again by placing second in both League and Districts for Volleyball. Girls Slow Pitch Softball rounded up the season by taking first place in League and third in Districts.

The winter season proved to be equally prosperous for the Papermakers. First off, the Girls Bowling Team sent a few of their teammates to Districts and sent Shelby Chartrand, their top bowler, to the State Meet. Girls' Basketball also had a triumphant season after placing first in League, eventually losing to Eastlake in the State playoffs. Boys' Basketball also had a good season placing second in League and took third place in their Bend, Oregon Tournament in December. The Camas Boys' Swim Team saw plenty of success last winter, placing first in League and Districts, while clinching the fourth spot at State. The Wrestling Team also showed well. This was the first year that Girls' Wrestling was recognized as its own team and they managed to send four girls to the Regional Tournament, and one Junior, Lacey Dunlap, made an appearance at State. The boys placed second in League and first in Districts and sent seven wrestlers off to the State tournament. The girls' Gymnastic Team closed the season with an undefeated League season and a first place spot in districts. They also sent four gymnasts to the State meet.

The Papermakers ended the year with a spring season full of success. Baseball claimed the second spot in League and had a tough eleventh inning loss in the District playoffs. Girls' Softball also demonstrated their prowess by claiming the second place spot in the League and by tying for third in Districts. The Girls' Golf Team was victorious as well, placing first in the League race and first in Districts. This was also a super year for Girls' Golf as their entire team made it to the State tournament and took second place. Next up is the Girls' Tennis Team that claimed the fourth spot in League and performed well in the District Tournament, sending Hannah Gianan, a CHS Junior, off to State. The Boys' Soccer Team took the League Title, placed first in the District Final, and had a tough overtime loss in their first State game to the State Champions of the past two years, Snohomish High School. Track also had a strong season. The girls took both the League and District Title and sent many athletes off to Bi-Districts and State. The boys claimed second place in League and third in Districts, also sending many athletes off to Bi-Districts and State.

Overall this year could not have gone better for the Camas Papermaker Athletes. The legacies created and built upon will leave big shoes to fill for next year's athletes, but there is no doubt that the Papermakers will live up to the challenge.

The curse of senior year: senioritus

By Courtney Estrada
Sports Editor

Senioritis can hit a student at any time their senior year. Yes this is a real thing. Senioritis as stated in the dictionary, is an affliction that students feel in their final year of high school or college, characterized by a decline in motivation or performance. This is a natural phenomenon that most senior students have experienced. The causes of this can be from the stress of their first semester. Having to balance their already busy lives while adding a senior project, college applications and scholarships to them, can be a lot to manage. Once it is all over it feels like the student just finished a marathon. Common symptoms are feeling tired, not doing as well as usual on easy homework assignments, or just skipping class. While this break may feel nice it is important to understand that the last semester of senior year could have an effect on future plans. It may not seem likely to fall into the senioritis trap but it is a lot easier than most would think. Once in it is hard to break free from senioritis.

While the consequences of what could happen because of senioritis might loom over these student's heads, it is more important to equip them with ways to avoid it. Seniors have to realize that the time of graduation is upon them and that they might as well finish as strong as possible. They have all worked hard in some way or another, so in order to keep themselves moving, one of the best things to do is to set small goals and stay positive. By setting small achievable goals it helps take the student's mind off of large long term goals like waiting to hear about rooming situations or waiting lists. By staying positive about achieving these small goals, the students can remain liking school as well as finishing strong. As weird as it may seem forming study groups with peers can help kill two birds with one stone. The senior is improving their study habits while still engaging with others. People experiencing senioritis will usually either seclude themselves or just spend their time socializing instead of working on homework. Study groups are the best of both worlds and keep challenging the student.

One other thing that can help students avoid senioritis is taking time to relax. This could be with family or friends. Students sometimes feel they don't get to read enough on their own because their English class assigns reading, so by setting aside time to read for fun this allows the student to refresh themselves and stay motivated. The pressure to succeed can be so overwhelming for some seniors that they just shut down, but by taking some time to relax, or do something they enjoy, it allows them to not become so stressed and helps them resist the urge to slack off. Seniors have all of summer to enjoy and spend with friends while getting ready to take on their next adventure They need to start it off on the right foot not lagging behind because of senioritis. Senior year is the best year to enjoy, but staying ahead of senioritis will help students love this special year so much more in the future.

May and June: Musicians of the Month

Newman, Hoddap: recognized for artistic skill by band director Mancini and peers.

By Alex Filius
Staff Writer

The two artists featured for the months of May and June are exceptional musicians who play for the Camas Band. John Newman and Isaac Hoddap have both contributed a massive amount of time to the band. Now, as a reward for their dedication and their impressive musical skills, they have received the last Artist of the Month award for the school year.

Newman, a junior, has played the tuba since seventh grade and quickly established himself as a master on his instrument. He admits that there are not many tuba players out there so his skills are appreciated more. Not just Camas High School, but the whole state of Washington recognized Newman's talent. He participated in several state solo contests and was awarded the title of All-State Band this past November. Although Newman enjoys listening to and the songs of his influenced by his two major idols, Maynard Ferguson and Louis Armstrong, Newman would like to give a special thanks to Mr. Mancini for the award nomination.

Hoddap, a soon to be graduating senior, started playing the trumpet in sixth grade and continually improved since. Isaac especially loves the diversity of the trumpet. "One can play almost every genre on this instrument," says Hoddap. His passion for playing the trumpet has led him to many accomplishments. He is an Army All-American, a three time national Selection and is able to call himself one of the best players in state of Washington, after placing second in state this year. These are just a small fraction of the many honorable awards Hoddap has been given. His influence comes from Arturo Sandoval and Maynard Ferguson as well. Just as Newman, Hoddap would also like to thank Mr. Mancini for this prestigious award.

Young athletes, and soon to be Papermakers, look up to the older players, hoping to be just like them one day. Then there is the award winning theater department. Their shows so phenomenal, that tickets for the first Romeo and Juliet performance sold out in ten minutes. Countless hours and toil from the director, cast, orchestra and stage crew culminating into an unforgettable show. The numerous amount of clubs allow students to further pursue their interests, clubs ranging from service focused to astronomy. So many opportunities have been presented to us with programs like Skills Center and Running Start. Today we join together to celebrate our final moments as a Papermaker student.

Our futures are still full of uncertainties and fear may fill us from time to time, but that is part of the experience. Camas High School is full of talented students with a great deal of potential and everyone is excited to see what we do with it.

A final congratulations on to Mrs. Danielson, our advisor, on her retirement! As happy as we are for her, Camas High School is saying goodbye to a fantastic teacher. I am thankful that I have had the opportunity to work with her for the past four years. She tells us that journalism is more than a class, it is a job and encourages a student based environment which allows us to advocate our opinions and use our creativity to ultimately produce The Camasonian. We thank you for constantly being supportive and wanting nothing but the best for each of us. On behalf of the class, I can say that we have become your second family and you have practically become our second mother. You make sure we are staying healthy and happy and help us when we struggle. We are all very appreciative of you and thank you for such a great year. Thank you for always having confidence in my abilities to grow and improve as well as confidence in the class' abilities and aspirations.

Congratulations Class of 2016! We made it.
